Integrated Dental Training Centre:

“Acquiring clinical skills to practice independently alongside with Specialist Collaboration”.

Objectives: -

1. Clinical Excellence: Develop and enhance students' clinical abilities by applying theoretical knowledge gained during the BDS course.
2. Independent Practice: Enable students to independently manage and execute high-quality clinical dental procedures.

The Context:

The Integrated Dental Training Facility aims to develop students' clinical excellence through hands-on application of theoretical knowledge from the BDS course. Students will gain the skills to independently manage and execute high-quality dental procedures under mentorship. The program emphasizes interdisciplinary collaboration with dental specialists to provide comprehensive patient care. Through real-world clinical experiences, students will refine diagnostic and treatment planning skills. Ultimately, the facility prepares students for successful and autonomous practice in the dental field.

The practice

The Integrated Dental Training Centre (IDTC) at Mansarovar Dental College and Hospital on Kolar Road in Bhopal operates as an integrated dental training facility, specifically designed to enhance the clinical skills of BDS students in diagnosing and treating patients requiring comprehensive dental treatments. Unlike traditional academic settings where undergraduates are typically posted in specific departments and treat patients from those departments alone, the IDTF facilitates encounters with patients presenting diverse dental issues, fostering the development of comprehensive treatment plans that involve multiple specialties. This unique setup ensures that students gain exposure to various dental conditions and collaborate across disciplines to deliver specialized care tailored to individual patient needs.

Interns posted in the minor department like oral pathology, pedodontics, orthodontics, and community dentistry, and each department rotate weekly through the IDTF. During their time in the clinic, interns can interact directly with patients presenting with various dental problems, gaining invaluable experience in formulating accurate diagnoses and devising treatment plans that require expertise from all areas of dentistry.

The workflow begins with interns receiving patients and conducting thorough clinical assessments. They collaborate with specialists from different disciplines within dentistry, such as prosthodontics, endodontics, periodontics, and oral surgery, to develop holistic treatment strategies tailored to each patient's needs. This process mirrors the dynamics of private dental practice, where clinicians must integrate knowledge and skills from multiple specialties to deliver optimal patient care.

Interns actively participate in treatment procedures under the supervision of experienced faculty members and specialists. They acquire practical skills in performing various dental procedures, such as restorations, root canal treatments, periodontal therapies, and oral surgeries. Throughout this immersive experience, interns learn to navigate complex cases, understand when to consult specialists for advanced interventions, and gain confidence in managing diverse dental conditions independently.

The Integrated Dental Training Facility fosters an environment conducive to interdisciplinary learning and professional growth. It cultivates a mindset of clinical excellence and independence, preparing interns for future practice by honing their diagnostic abilities, treatment planning skills, and interdisciplinary collaboration. Through exposure to real-world clinical scenarios, interns develop the competencies required to excel in the dynamic field of dentistry and deliver comprehensive patient-centered care.

Problems encountered.

- 1. Securing Special Permissions: Obtaining necessary permissions was essential to establish the comprehensive clinic.
- 2. Equipment Procurement and Material Management: Ensuring the procurement of all required equipment and regular supply of materials posed logistical challenges.
- 3. Allocation of Funds: Obtaining sanctioned funds was crucial for setting up and maintaining the clinic effectively.
- 4. Increased Faculty Responsibilities: Running the comprehensive clinic required assigned faculties to take on additional responsibilities to ensure smooth operations.
- 5. Patient Records Maintenance: Maintaining accurate registers and records of treated patients posed administrative challenges for the clinic staff.

“ENHANCING STUDENT LEARNING: UPGRADING CLINICAL DIAGNOSTIC MODELS THROUGH 3D MODELS/CHARTS AND SEMINARS LED BY THIRD-YEAR STUDENTS”.

OBJECTIVE OF THE PRACTICE:

1. Fostering Student Growth: Encouraging and Supporting Skill Enhancement in Learning.
2. As a method of innovative teaching and learning in order to maximize student's understanding of diagnosis and treatment planning by involving them in making clinical diagnostic 3D models/charts, presentations, and seminars by Third year students.

CONTEXT:

In the dynamic field of dentistry, maintaining knowledge currency is essential. The "Innovative Teaching and Learning" objective targets enhancing the educational journey for third year BDS students entering clinical practice. The initiative integrates cutting-edge methods for improved comprehension of diagnosis and treatment planning. This involvement creates a dynamic learning environment, fostering collaboration and innovation. The program not only maximizes understanding but also imparts crucial creating awareness in patients. clinical exposure for third year BDS students is gained through the active involvement and the forward-thinking approach aims to prepare students for their roles as proficient dental professionals. The initiative signifies a commitment to continuous learning and excellence. Ultimately, the program strives to equip students for the challenges and opportunities they will face in their clinical journey.

PRACTICE:

1. Empowering and assisting our students in advancing their learning capabilities is a key focus of our educational approach. Annually, as a part of their clinical posting, a cohort of 100 students is enrolled. To facilitate effective learning, these students are organized into batches comprising 6-10 individuals.
2. Each batch is assigned a specific topic, requiring them to construct functional 3D models and create a comprehensive PowerPoint presentation. This presentation is later delivered in the presence of both faculty members and fellow students. A designated time frame is allocated for the presentation, ensuring a thorough display of their project work during the exhibition.
3. Cultivating a culture of recognizing and celebrating student accomplishments is integral to our academic environment. The department hosts an annual exhibition cum competition, providing a platform for all students to showcase their 3D models. Faculty members from across the institution are invited to attend this exhibition, offering a comprehensive evaluation of the students' achievements.
4. During the exhibition, valuable performance feedback is actively collected from the faculty, contributing to the overall assessment and recognition of students' efforts and accomplishments. This approach not only encourages student achievements but also fosters a collaborative and supportive learning atmosphere.

EVIDENCE OF SUCCESS:

1. Feedback has been collected through Google Forms for the past year to gauge the preferred method of learning anatomy, specifically focusing on the choice between 3D working models and conventional PowerPoint (PPT) presentations.
2. According to the pie charts provided, it is evident that 73.5% of students Favor 3D working models as their preferred learning method to enhance their understanding of anatomy concepts. Additionally, a corresponding bar graph illustrates that engaging in the process of creating PowerPoint presentations instils confidence in the subject matter.
3. This data indicates a positive trend, with an increasing number of students actively participating in both models making and the preparation of PowerPoint presentations for seminars each year. Simultaneously, there is a noticeable reduction in apprehension related to student-student and student-faculty interactions, fostering a more open and collaborative learning environment.
