ARE OUR ORGANISATIONS READY FOR GENERATION Z

Soon the organisations will shift their workforce with millennials to generation Z. Generation Z are the most versatile, flexible, technology driven and diverse generations in the world wide. At present the organisations has a high demand of the remote and hybrid work environment. It has always been observed that high salary is the major factor for any job to attract the employee but generation Z are more attracted towards interesting job rather than giving their time for boring jobs. Organisations now need to frame strategies, policies and working culture that stretches career growth and development.

Other factors like better place for women workforce, flexible culture and learning environment also influences Gen Z. Gen Z will assuredly impact the organisation environment both positively and negatively. Positive influence of these generation is they are efficient problem solver and divergent thinker. They are also fast learners while they need long period of time to integrate the values, organisational culture, and work style. Thus, HR professionals soon need to look upon all the changes in professional environment to ensure productive and smooth functioning at the work place.

EXCERPTS FROM THE BOOK

Prof. Farha Khan
Assistant Professor
M. Tech, MIT

FROM UNNOTICED TO BEING REMEMBERED

Overall, a human being is nothing without God, and possessing patience and a grateful nature can lead you to witness miracles. Miracles occurred with prophets due to their unshakeable faith in God and their gratitude during setbacks. Once you reach this point in life, you will start experiencing miracles. Begin by noting down tiny coincidences, like meeting an old friend in a grocery aisle or receiving unexpected advice. When you find purpose in living, you will feel more grateful, even if you don't have your dream car. You will start experiencing God's hand in everything you do and receive surprises from friends and family. Miracles can include healing from chronic illness or recovering from life-threatening accidents. You may begin to feel the presence of angels around you, leaving you in awe.

When you stop telling lies, you can literally increase your positive vibe and attract more blessings into your life. More blessings lead to more miracles, aligning you with your manifestations. Trust me, try not to tell lies for one week. It requires extreme courage to speak the truth about ourselves because it's easy to speak bitter truths about others, but being truthful about ourselves is painful.

Be wary of frenemies; they will never leave you and will drain your energy like parasites feeding on your soul. Take strong action and cut ties with them immediately. Watch for signs; they rarely reveal their true colors. This will eventually help declutter your friend circle. Only befriend those who align with your values.
